

Daniel Gore

General Overview

Daniel Gore is a Senior Associate with RBB Economics and has over four years' experience as a competition economist. He read undergraduate economics at University College London, and received a Master's degree from the University of Warwick, specializing in industrial organisation and competition policy. Daniel has lectured at Kings College London on the economic aspects of state aid control and is a member of the CBI's working group on state aids. He is the co-author of a paper providing an economic perspective on the European technology transfer Article 81 block exemption regulation.

Experience

Daniel has worked on mergers and acquisitions raising both horizontal and vertical issues assessed under the EU, UK, Irish and South African merger control jurisdictions. He has advised potentially dominant firms on their commercial position under Article 82 and worked with clients contemplating making abuse of dominance complaints.

Daniel has advised firms involved in cases brought under the UK market investigation regime, and assisted in the preparation of expert witness reports for litigation. He has also advised on matters before the UK's Competition Appeal Tribunal.

Clients include General Electric, BP, Sainsbury's, Aviva, Royal Dutch Shell Topaz Energy, FirstRand Bank, Agfa-Gevaert, Coillte Teoranta, Alliance UniChem and Companhia Vale do Rio Doce.

Sector Experience

Daniel has provided antitrust advice across a wide range of industries, including petroleum refining and retailing, consumer finance, drug manufacture, pharmaceutical wholesaling, telecommunications, supermarket retailing, cement and concrete manufacture, forestry products, dairy processing, newspaper and magazine distribution, press and printing materials, and the provision of IT systems.
